SEDATIVE EFFECT OF A DEBATE OVER THE ADMISSION OF NEW STATES. Astonio Joseph Makes a Logical Appeal for the Admission of New Mexico-Legis-istion of Interest to New York Post Office Employees-Three Veto Messages,

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 .- It was dreary without and within the House to-day, Rain fell, and the debate over the bill for the admission of South Dakota was resumed. The overworked stenographers had an easy day. Most of the seches were written, and there was little magnetism in the manner of their delivery. The debate had a sedative effect. Sofas at the back of the House and in the cloak rooms were filled with sleepers. Among them were Samuel J. Randall, Gen. Forney of Alabama, and Gen. atcheon of Michigan. They are invalids, and everybody rejoiced at the soothing effect of the speeches upon them. Poindexter Dunn. Jones G. Howard, Thomas Ryan, Gen. Tom Brown, and Gen. Henderson of Illinois also slept sweetly. Gentlemen suffering from in-semia would have found the medicine very All members remained in the House awaiting a vote upon the measure, None. however, was taken. It was a sea of discussion without a ripple. A branch of the Tall Sycamore of the Wabash dropped into the water about 3 o'clock, but this splash was the only interesting incident. The candidates for Speaker at prayers were the Hom-Thomas Brackett Reed and Major Wm. Me-Kinley, Jr. Mr. McKinley sat with folded arms, and Mr. Reed leaned upon the brass rall back of the Republican seats rubbing his nose. The prayer was a long one, and the gentleman from Maine retired to the cloak room before conclusion. The blind Chaplain besought the Almighty to deliver the people of the country from the worship of mammon. There were only a dozen ladies in the gallery. The whole dozen were far more devout than the seven candidates for Speaker.

After the reading of the minutes Mr. Dunn of Arkansas, Chairman of the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, reported a resolution calling upon the Secretaries of War and Treasury for copies of all correspondence and orders relative to the use of the English steamship State of Alabama in the work of excavating the main ship channel in New York harbor. It was adopted. Cummings is a contractor who was allowed to import the vessel upon the pleathat no suitable American-built ship could be

Then ensued a bit of legislation interesting to the 1.800 employees of the New York Post Office. Mr. Blount of Georgia, Chairman of the Postal Committee, asked to engraft upon the Post Office Appropriation bill the proposition for the classification of clerks in first and second class Post Offices. There was at first objection, but Mr. Blount was persistent, and finally succeeded in his object. This will secure the classification of said clerks. It prevents the advancement of favorites by Postmasters. It is recommended by the President and the Postmaster-General. For three years Post Office employees have sought this legislation. The legislative field is now clear, and there is no doubt that it will be secured. The House then resumed the consideration of the Territorial bill. The Hon, Antonio Joseph was the first speaker. He made the nest speech of the day. It was carefully prepared, and was logical and argumentative, Mr. Joseph is the delegate from New Mexico. He asserted that that Territory had stronger claims to admission than any other Territory under treaty stipulations. He outlined its le asserted that that Territory had stronger claims to admission than any other Territory under treaty stipulations. He outlined its early history. In 1848 it became a nart of the United States. Its neople then believed that under the provisions of the treaty they were entitled to admission. In June, 1850, they adopted a State Constitution with a clause prohibiting slavery. This Constitution was submitted to Congress. Under it a Governor, a Congressman, a Legislature, and two United States Senators were elected. The prayer for admission, however, was denied. The people were disappointed. Thirteen years later they railled to the support of the Union, and furnished more troops to the Federal Government than all the Territories then existing, including Nobraska, Nevada, and Colorado. No stronger answer, Mr. Joseph said, could be given to charges that the native population of New Mexico was foreign in spirit and lacking in devotion to the United States. He said that in 1874 the House passed a bill for its admission by a three-fourths majority. Its population was then 110,000. To-day it is 175,000, Among the Republican members who then voted for its admission were Roderick R. Butler of Tennessee, Joseph G. Cannon of Illinois, Alfred C. Harmon of Pennsylvania, Charles O'Nell of Philadelphia, and David Wilbur of New York. They are all now members of the House. Other Republican members who voted for it were Henry L. Dawes of Massachusetts, Charles B. Farweil of Illinois, William T. Frye of Maine, and Philotus Sawyer of Wisconsin. These men are now Sonators. James A. Garfeld, John A. Kasson, O. D. Conger, and Charles Charles B. Farveil of Illinois, William B. Allien, John J. Ingalis, John H. Mitchell, William M. Stewar, George H. Boutwell, Simon Cameron, Hannibal Hamilia, John A. Logan, and William Windom. The bill fell to the ground in conference committee on points of detail. Thus but for the accidents of legislation New Maxico Would now be a State. In the Forty-fourth Congress the Senate passed a bill for its admissi by Acting Vice-President Ingalls, who will tender him the use of the Vice-President's room during his stay in the city. Mr. Morton comes for the purpose of making a special study of parliamentary law and the rules of the Senate, and to post himself in the duties of his new office. He is quite unexperienced in legislative matters, and will be necessarily somewhat embarrassed in occupying the President's chair after such an adeut in the rules and such a model pragiding officer as Mr. Ingalls. Several of the leading Republican Senators held a meeting to-day in the Vice-President's chamber for the purpose of talking over the arrival of Mr. Morton, and to arrange the details of the electoral vote count. A new Senate rule was adopted a few days ago which will allow Mr. Morton the privilege of the floor, there being no rule at present admitting either the President of Vice-President elect to this favor. vehemently. Mr. Joseph annoyed him very much as the Spanish guerillas annoyed the French in Spain in 1812, and kept him quite busy in attempting to answer his questions. After Mr. Struble came Charles S. Voorhees of Washington Territory. He is the son of Senator Voorhees of Indiana. In voice and manner he resembles his father, but not in stature. He delivered a flowery speech on behalf of the admission of Washington, and was congratulated at its close.

The next speaker was Gen. Mansur of Missouri. He made a compact argument on behalf of the admission of South Dakota, Washington, Montana, and New Mexico.

After his speech three messages from the President were read. One was the veto of a bill concerning the use of a telephone by a country Postmaster, and two were vetoes of private pension bills. In one case Congress and granted a pension to a man who had contracted rheumatism while a deserter. The President also sent in some correspondence in relation to a possible disturbance on the isthmus of Darien upon the stoppage of work on the Panama Canal.

Mr. Herman of Oregon next made an appeal of the admission of Washington Territory. He was followed by the Hon. Charles S. Baker of Rechester. Mr. Baker pitched into the Democracy for its treatment of the Territories in the House, and urged the prompt admission of South Dakota. It was a Senate bill, and its passage by the House would end the matter of lar as that Territory was concerned. The House could then pass bills for the admission of Montana, Washington, and New Mexico, and see itse to smiles of deriston among the few Democrats who were listening.

During Mr. Baker's speech a copy of Puck containing the picture of James G. Blaine in Washington with the inscription. "I'm here, letch on your Administration." was circulated on the Democrate side of the House. Watched on the Democrate side of the Senate, said to-day that it was undoutedry settled that a Western man is to be Secretary of the Treasury. This excilcit statement started the rumor in the Senate that John Sherman is to again assume control of the finances, leaving a chance still osen for Blaine to be Secretary of State. Several Senators, when questioned about this last rumor, admitted its possibility, but declined to say that they had any knowledge on the subject.

Rolls of manuscript, bound uniformly in red lay on the desks of almost every Senator when the Chaplain opened the proceedings of the Senate with prayer, this morning. They were all petitions praying for the passage of the "Sunday Rest" bill. The Senators, as a rule, presented them in a purely formal manner and without making any remarks. Sonator Riddleberger, however, in presenting those sent to him announced himself as unalterably opposed to any such legislation. His remarks were listened to with close attention by a number of members of the W. C. T. U., the organization which put the petitions in circulation. It is asserted that the signatures attached to the petitions represent 14.174.734 people.

Congressman Anderson of Quincy, in behalf of a sub-committee, to-day reported to the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads a bill making fourth-class Postmasters elective by the people. This is a scheme to relieve Congressmen of the embarrassing duty of determining which one of a dozen friends of theirs in a country town is to have the Post Office with $400 a year. Many a Congressman has been beaten by the enemies he has made in the distribution of rural Post Offices, and a great many of the representatives would be glad to divest themselves of this patronage. Election by the people, however, would divide the minor Post Offices pretty evenly between the two political parties, while the present system gives all the Post Offices to the party that controls the Administration. Mr. Blount got leave to-day to report an amendment to the Postal Appropriation bill providing for the classification of clerks in the lifter and second class Post Offices clerks have been working hard for. Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads a endeavored to limit debate, but was again beaten.

Delegate Dubois of Idaho next made an effective little sneech on behalf of the admission of New Mexico. Mr. Dubois is a Republican, and his speech pleased Mr. Joseph, who is a Democrat, and attracted considerable attention. He had only eight minutes, but he used them to the best advantage.

Mr. Outhwaite next secured unanimous consent for the passage of a bill making Columbus. Ohio, a port of entry, and the House adjourned. Thus closed the twenty-eighth day of the second session of the lower branch of the great semi-centennial North American Congress.

LIFE WASHINGTON TOPICS.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The politicians and

Cabinet makers, says the Star, will probably find new food for speculation in the fact that Vice-President-elect Morton and Mrs. Morton have taken quarters in the same house with Mr. Blaine and his family. In compliance with a request by telegraph, Mr. William Walter Phelps has secured quarters at the Normandie for Mr. and Mrs. Morton, and they are expected here to-morrow. They expect to remain in Washington for several days. Cabinet gossips are more than ever inclined to accept it as certain that Blaine is to go into the Cabinet notwithstanding the efforts that are being made to keep him out. Mr. Blaine's friends have no doubt of his receiving an invitation from Gen. Harrison to join his official household. The friends of Mr. Miller in Copgress are inclined to make a great deal of the visit of his friend, Mr. Plummer, to Gen. Harrison. They say that Plummer was sent for directly by Gon. Harrison, and that the result of the visit was to encourage the hopes of the Miller men. Some of the anti-Blaine mem-bers of both Houses of Congress have dug up the old Peruvian clains scandal that was investigated by the House Committee during the Forty-seventh Congress, and are attempting to show to Gen. Harrison that Mr. Blaine's association with the matter was too intimate for discretion during his brief term as Secretary of State. A great deal was said at the time about this Peruvian business and the connection of Walker Blaine and Senator. Blair with it as attorneys for the committee, and at that time the famous tilt between him and Perry Belmont occurred. About a week ago some Senators and Representatives in Congress who want to keep Blaine out of the Cabinet caused a search to be begun among the files of the State Department relating to these Peruvian claims, in the hopes of finding something which, in connection with the developments at the investigation, might turn new light on the subject. They have gathered all the information on the subject which could be construed to reflect upon Mr. Blaine, and have sent, or intend to send, a paperon the subject of Gen. Harrison as an argument why Mr. Blaine should not be made Secretary of State. ing the Forty-seventh Congress, and are

For improving Whitney Basin. New York Navy Yard. $40,000; for railroad in the yard. $15,000; repairing marine barracks, $20,000; new naval observatory. $240,000; four new steam tugs. $140,000; new plant, navy yards at New York and Norfolk. $50,000 in each case.

Under the head of new construction, the appropriation of $450,000 for an additional cruiser of the Vesuvius type, of not less dimensions, it is stipulated that the vessel shall attain a speed of twenty-one knots an hour for one knot more than was required of the Vesuvius, and shall be able to steam for fifteen days continuously at the rate of ten knots an hour. They making of the/contract for the vessel is also conditional upon the success of the armament of the Vesuvius. So, in the case of the cruising armored monitor authorized to be built on the plans of Representative Thomas of Illinois, at a cost of $1,500,000, it is stipulated that the contractor shall guarantee 7,500 horse bower, and a speed of at least seventeen knots per hour, while a bonus is provided for any greater speed, and a penalty for any deficiency. The bill also carries an appropriation of $10.340,000 for beginning and continuing work on the new vessels authorized to be constructed by Congress during former sessions.

Representative Cowles said to-day that he had the assurances of a majority of the Appropriation Committee, representing both sides, that if the Committee on Ways and Means did that if the Committee on Ways and Moans did not report a similar measure within a week, the Appropriation Committees would re-port his bill and demand immediate action. We consider it but courteous to allow the Committee on Ways and Means time, "said Mr. Cowles, "but-a week is long enough, and if nothing is done by that time we have the means of securing early action on my bill. In this case the Committee on Appropriations is considered as a special committee for the con-sideration of this bill, and, as a special com-mittee, will be expected to make an early report, Senator Blair of New Hampshire and Senator Morgan of Alabama have cut each other's acquaintance, and will speak no more as they pass by. They deliberately parted company this afternoon in a very bitter and exceedingly impolite and unparliamentary war of words in the Senate. At its conclusion Mr. Morgan plainly told Mr. Blair to take himself and his narrow-minded notions to some more congenial company than his own. The dispute arose over a statement of Morgan's that the negro is the curse of the South, and that it every colored man in Alabama could be turned out of it, and the State fenced in so they could never get back. Alabama would soon blossom out as one of the richest and most fertile States in the Union. He expressed a hope that one hundred thousand of the negroes could be sent to New Hampshire, where, no doubt, they would be welcomed and protected. Blair promptly took up the challenge, and said he would be giad to have them come. In his most rasping voice and cutting manner he added that he would much prefer to have the black men of Alabama as neighbors than the white men of that State, and then added insuit to injury by declaring that the presence of the black men would be more desirable even than the presence of the Alabama Senator himself. Morgan flushed up at this reflection, and the Senators looked to see him make an angry reply. He kept his temper, however, but did not neglect to tell Mr. Blair that the desire for a wide distance between them was mutual, and that he would please regard it hereafter in their daily life. He would be very glad indeed to part company with a man of Blair's calibre, he said, and the New Hampshire Senator closed the controversy by assuring the Alabama Senator that he should take Igood care to thrust his acquaintance and presence upon him no more. According to the usual custom in the Senator, but each declares that he prefers to let the mater stand as it is.

A NEW NEW YORK AND NEW JERSEY BRIDGE BILL INTRODUCED. nly a Few Changes From the Bill That Didn't Pass Last Year—Creamer Defends his Rapid Transit Bill—Kerrigan Proposes to Make Parks of Unoccupied Docks ALBANY, Jan. 16 .- Judge Greene of Orange county introduced his New York and New Jersey Bridge bill in the A-sembly this morning. This bill was introduced last year in order that the people affected by it might have an opportunity to know its provisions and to discuss them. It did not pass either House. There were objections to portions of the bill as it was then drawn up, and some of these objections still hold good. In a few respects the bill has been changed, notably in the requirement that all railroad companies shall have equal facilities for transit, and in changing the power of appintment of the Commissioners from the Governor to the Mayor, also reducing the number of the extra Commissioners to one. The bill organizes the New York and New Jersey Bridge Company, with a capital of $10,000,000 to start with. The names of the incorporators have been changed since last your. Their duties are now partly to incorporate and organize the company and partly to act as Commissioners for the assessment of damages on the property which is taken for bridge purposes. One is to be appointed by the Mayor, the others are Gen. George S. Field, a well-known engineer; ex-Comptroller Andrew H. Green, Charles McDonald, C. M. Vall, and Frank K. Hain. The Commissioners are to locate the New York end of the bridge somewhere between Tenth and 181st streets, a range of about nine miles. The bridge is to have two main spans, 1,300 feet in the clear and 136 feet high. The intention of the promoters of this bill is to have the various railroads which now end in Jersey City run trains to New York, bill is to have the various railroads which now end in Jersey City run trains to New York, meeting the New York Central somewhere in Harlem, or possibly in the annexed district. They decline to tell the exact location they wish, as they say it would too greatly increase the value of property in that neighborhood. A beit line railroad is to be constructed along the Jersey City water front, so that froight from the west and east can be loaded and shipped there with as much ease as now, with the greater advantage that the dockage facilities offinew York will be to this extent increased. Air. Creamer made a speech in the Assembly this morning, in which he explained the Rapid Transit bill. Mr. Potter of Cayuga county said to me: 'Do you propose to put a railroad on stilts and to run cars on stilts with people in them? Why, that is an insane idea.' This year, in response to the requirements of the people of New York, who demand increased facilities for rapid transit. I introduced this bill. Instead of being met with the charge of heling insane, I am ridiculed and abused. There are now two or three Rapid Transit Commissions in existence, roaming around and doing nothing. They are a hindrane to rapid transit, in this bill it is proposed to constitute a Commission of five to devise a plan. That Commission is to be Andrew H. Green, Benjamin Wood, George I. Sheldon, and two Commissioners to be appointed by the Mayor. Mr. Green you know, Mr. Wood you know, and Mr. Sheldon you know. The other two Commissioners would be appointed by the Mayor. This Commission should devise a rapid transit plan and carry it out at once."

Mr. Charles Silver Dollar Smith appeared in Albany this morning for the first time for a week. He is worried, but as stout as ever, and had on a shirt of yellow and red stripes. Mr. Smith said: "I would like to know why the Reform Club is persecuting me. They actually accuse me of having spent hard money for votes. I am pained at such a charge. These people have some grudge against me. I do not know why. They had me before the United States Grand Jury and I was discharged. Now they are trying to have me indicted here. Why don't they prosecute me in New York where my character and standing are known?" Mr. Smith relieved his feelings by introducing a bill for the incorporation of the Grand Lodge of the Order of Sons of Liberty, and had it sent to a third reading.

William H. Tefft. Assemblyman from Washington county, had a quarrel with a page boy this morning in the Assembly. Mr. Tefft is a lawyer, editor, and Whitehail statesman. He was in the Assembly in 1878. His hair grows straight up into the air, the height varying from 25 to 4 inches, according to how recently it has been cut. He is not satisfied with the way that the page boys wait on him, and assembling them this morning, he picked out the best dressed one, and, after calling him a variety of names, raised his hands in the air and solemnly asseverated that the next page boy that did not do as he wished or did anything that he did not wish would die. One of Mr. Tefft's friends explained his conduct by saying that he had been doing what is known in Washington county as taking too much yeast.

Festing the Constitutionality of the Elev

tor Law. ALBANY, Jan. 16 .- When the Court of Appeals opened this morning the case of the people against J. Talman Budd was moved. The suit is to test the validity of chapter 581 of the Laws of 1888 regulating elevator fees. The appeal is by the defendant, Budd, who is manger of the C. J. Wells elevator at Buffalo. The lehigh Valley Transportation Company applied to him to clevate the cargo of the propeller Oceanica of 50,000 bushels of corn. He charged one cent a bushel for elevating, receiving, and discharging. The McEvoy law, under which the case arose, provides that the fee shall not exceed a of one cent a bushel, liudd was convicted of violating chapter 581, Appeals were taken.

The appellant argues that the act is unconstitutional, in that it deprives the citizen of liberty and property without due process of law; that the Legislature could not make the business of elevating grain a public business, when, in fact, it is private, and that the act is not an exorcise of the police power of the State.

The Attorney-General for the State responded, and held that the Legislature has power to regulate and limit private rights and the carrying on of a private business by what is called the police power. The elevating of grain is of such a nature as fairly to be classed as a business charged with public interest. Arguments were made by Spencer Clinton for appellant, Attorney-General Charles F. Tabor and District Attorney George T. Quinby of Erie for respondent. Lehigh Valley Transportation Company ap-

AN EX-PUGILIST KNOCKED OUT.

The W. C. T. U. Compel him to Take Dow his Sign and Quit Selling Liquors. MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Jan. 16,-The veteran sport, James Angus, at one time trainer of Tom Hyer and other noted champions, and himself handy with his fists, has been completely knocked out at the end of a protracted conflict with the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Blooming Grove, this county Some years ago Angus, who had previously kept a sporting resort in New York bought a property in the village of Washingtonville and opened a hotel there. He catered for the sporting trade, and conducted his hotel in such free and easy disregard of the restrictive features of the Excise laws that he soon incurred the hostility of the religious and temperance sentiment which strongly prevails in the place. War was opened on him with the purpose of closing up his bar or driving him out of the town. As one step a liquor license was refused him, and when he kept on selling out of the town. As one step a liquor license was refused him, and when he kept on selling just the same the machinery of justice was invoked to punish him for his bold and obstinate infractions of the Excise laws. The ex-puglist made a pineky light against the assaults of his enemies, and for a time, favored by the lenichcles of Grand Jurors and Judges, he escaped any serious punishment.

But disaster and defeat have overtaken him in the end, When, on Nov. 1 last, a young man named Frank Roche got drunk, as is alleged, on liquor unlawfully sold him by Angus, and in consequence thereof was run over and killed by a railroad train, public feeling was highly excited, and the war against the unlicensed liquor seller was renewed with redoubled vigor. He was hauled up in court and fined for this particular offence, and narrowly escaped a sentence to the penitentiary. The mother of the young man who was killed brought an action against him for 102 specific violations of the excise laws, each case involving a line of $50, or a total of penalties of $8,100. This last stunner finished the ox-oughlist, and he threw up the sponge. He submissively accepted the terms imposed by the conquering women, that he should pay one fine of $50 and take down his sign and close his hotel and sell no more whiskey in the town of Blooming Grove.

Such a poultry show, say experts, has never been seen before, for there are over 2,500 entries. The judges to-night were busy weigh ing the fowls as a preliminary to the work of judging, and this will occupy two days. The fowls are arranged in classes or breeds, each having its own standard of excellence. This is arranged so that weight, size, symmetry, style, plumage, comb, and other qualities are recorded, each according to its importance, up to a mark of perfection signified by 100. The prizes offered are very liberal, and to this is due the fine display, which includes birds of rare value. The bulk of the second class is the l'ivmouth kock, a comparatively new breed, which has been the craze of fanciers and farmers lately. SPORTS WITH THE BALL.

THE NEW YORK CLUB ENGAGES WAG-

ENHURST TO TAKE WARD'S PLACE. Picture of Our New Short Stop-A Ball Player Shot-Lew Brown, the Catch. er, Dead-News of the Bowling Men.

Elwood O. Wagenhurst, former captain of the Princeton College base ball and football teams, yesterday signed a contract with the New York Base Ball Club to play short stop in place of John M. Ward. Wagenhurst played third base for the Princeton team, and was with the Philadelphia Club for a short time in the early part of last season. Harry Wright considered him one of the coming players, but he was released by President Reach, who had an idea the club was carrying too many men. Manager Mutrie was very much elated over the capture that he had made. He said: "Wagenhurst is a remarkably fine runne batter, and infielder. He is young and ambi-tious, which counts greatly in his favor. I have seen him play some fine games on third base, and I have no doubt that he will do well at

"Then you will put him in Ward's place?" asked the reporter.
"Well, may give him a trial there," said Jim,

'in case Ward does not play with us." "It was no easy thing to get this man," continued the hustling manager of the New Yorks, "inasmuch as there were half a dozen other managers after him. This morning when I had everything fixed I telegraphed to President Day, and he told me to go ahead. The result is already told."

"Of course you received President Young's consent to sign him?" remarked the reporter. "What has Young got to do with it?" was the only has the right to sign players, or that they only has the right to sign players, or that they are to be signed with his consent?"

"I don't know anything about the rules. I have not received any official notice regarding the signing of players from Mr. Young. Mr. Day told me to sign this man, and I signed him. I do not know how President Young can grade him, for he does not know as much about him as I do. The lowest salary is only $1,500, any way, and I guess there will be no trouble about it."

As soon as Manager Mutrie found that he about it."
As soon as Manager Mutrie found that he might have made a break, he telegraphed to President Young, stating that he had in view a promising young player whom the New York Club desired to engage at once, and requested permission to make a contract with him. Under the new rules contracts are required to he made by the Possident of the League, so the latter promptly designated Manager Mutrie to act as his agent in this particular.

RELIGION, Jan. 16.—E. O. Wagenhurst is the son of an extensive lumber dealer in western Pennsylvania and a member of the class of '88 in Princeton College. He is about five feet six inches in height, of light complexion, with sandy hair and meastache. He is a remarkably powerfully built man, his shoulders and arms being simply massive. For three years he pulled on the 'varsity tug-of-war team and was one of the strongost men in college. He played football for three years, beginning with the scrub in his sophomore and ending with the captaincy of the eleven in his senior year. His base ball cancer was begun on his class nine, covering first base for two years with such efficiency that in his sophomore vear he was looked upon by many as a promising candidate for the 'varsity.

He did not join the nine, however, till his junior year, when he tried for third base, in which position he played for the last two years of his course, being in his senior year captain of the nine as well of the football cleven. He was a very sure batter, and until his senior year, with one exception, the heavlest one on the nine, and was especially good at sacrifice hitting. He was always one of the hardest workers for the nine, and covered a large amount of ground, besides being very sure on a throw as well as a ground ball.

His base running was on the whole boer, but showed marked signs of improvement during his last year on the nine. He slid well, but tended to be independent of the coach and was somewhat inclined to rattle. He also covered third base during the summer for the Cape May nine, which won the amnteur championship of New Jersey, losing but three games during the entire season. His play on this nine was much better than at any time while in college, and was characterized by hard and steady work. PRINCETON, Jan. 16,-E, O. Wagenhurst is the Cincintati, Jan. 16.—While all New York is wendering whether "Buck" Ewing has joined an expedition to discover Stanley, or gone to Havit to put down the insurrection, or has bought a place of liquid refreshment in the metropolis, that same "Buck" is living quietly here at home. He hasn't been near Troy all winter, and, indeed, has circulated between his home in the east end and Vine street. He anticipates no trouble about signing for next season and will arrive in New York when he is needed.

Dallas, Tex., Jan. 16.—William Bradley, the catcher of last season's Dallas club, and who recently signed a contract to catch for the S. Joe Club of the Western League, was shot and killed here this morning. His slayer is Tom Angus, a wealthy citizen, who owns several lines of omnibuses and hacks. Bradley was a desperade when under the influence of liquor, and three months ago shot and badly wounded a man. He quarrelled with Angus about a woman, and made a movement toward his pecket, when Angus shot him twice. He was a good catcher, and caught both bullets in the head.

Boston, Jan. 16.—"Lew" Brown, Boston's old favorite base ball catcher, died this neon at the City Hospital from the effects of an amputation of one of his logs. He fractured his kneepan last week while wrestling, and infammation set in, and the surgeon found it necessary to remove the limb in the house of saving his life. A severe case of pronomonia set in, and he failed to rally. Brown first came into public notice as carcher for the Boston Stars, a crack amateur club of fifteen years ago that made the Boston Common ball grounds famous. Charles J. Foley, John Morrill, and other famous players were members of this team of promising coits.

During the five years he was a member of the League he played in 252 championship games, with a batting average of 259, ranking 32 among League players. He was unequalled as a back stop. His weakness was his throwing. Without mask, gloves or chest protector "Brownie" would face the most erratic twirler that ever sent a ball over home plate and would catch in his most graceful style. After retiring from the field he acted as clerk for a sporting house on La Grange street, where a week aco he received the Injuries which caused his death.

Princeton. Jan. 16.—The Princeton nine began work this week in the gymnasium. The candidates are not very numerous, but the material, on the whole, is very promising. In Mercer Hall a substitute has been found for the old cage in the gymnasium. At a triffing expense it has been turned into a first-class handball court. It also affords a good place for battery practice. The dressing rooms in connection with the hall can be utilized by the players. nection with the hall can be utilized by the players. Breaks in large numbers show how the game in the Amateur Athletic League between Orange and Roseville went at Roseville last night. But few strikes were made, and those of the Rosevilles, coming in mostly on the tenth frame, enabled that club to win by 25 pins. From the fifth frame the Rosevilles led the visitors by but a few points, yet the Orange team did not seem to get up enough energy to down them. A fair-size crowd of spectators bestowed liberal applause upon the contestants. The score:

Kilrain Says Good-by-Sullivan's Friends are Very Much Astonished.

Charley Mitchell wore his best smile, his shiniest hat, and neatest suit of clothes when he stepped aboard the White Star steamer Britannic at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He was returning to England to his wife and baby, but announced that he would come back to America in the spring and train Kilrain for his fight with Sullivan, and comply with the conditions of the proclamation printed in yester-day's Sun so far as Jack Dempsey is concerned.

Kilrain came on all the way from Baltimore to say good-by, and when Mitchell resched his state room he found a huge bouquet of flowers from Mr. and Mrs. Kilrain and a silver match box from Mr. Richard K. Fox. Among those who congregated on the pier, outside of those who congregated on the paer, outside or a crowd of 200 Tongshoremon, were Billy O'Brien, Johnny Reagan, Archie Sinciair, Mike Donovan, Dom McCaffrey, J. Jack Barnitt, Sullivan's manager, Arthur T. Lumley, editor of the Hustrated News, and Jack Cusack, an intimate friend of the big fellow, were together when the news of Sullivan's outbreak in Boston arrived, and with one voice they declared that there could be no truth in the statement. Sullivan had said so emphatically while in New York recently that he had quit drinking for good that his friends will not believe the story until they have the most convincing froof. Barnitt said:

"He was perfectly solver when I left him yesterday. I'll not believe such a varn. It is the work of some person who is unfriendly to us."
